HONGKONG, JANUARY 13TH, 1909.

WHAT is a merchant? The question is one which often comes up for discussion in the Far East where every man who imports or exports a bale of goods designates himself a "general merchant," and speaks grandiloquently of his "firm." But much the same state of things obtains elsewhere, even in the City of London where "almost everybody calls himself a merchant." In the City of London "merchants" have hitherto been exempt from sitting on common juries, but under a new Act a fresh list had to be made and the justices at the Guildhall Quarter Sessions last month were called upon to answer the question: "What is a merchant? The Jury Act of 1870 provided that, amongst others, any person who was "a banker or merchant" should be exempted from service on common juries. Accordingly last month, a firm trading as Colonial merchants claimed to be on the special jury list in virtue of their business as "merchants," the rent they pay (£115 a year) when divided between the partners being insufficient to exclude them from the petty jury list.
Hence arose the question, as to what constitutes a "merchant." Counsel quoted authorities. First he took the dictionaries.
The edition of Webster of 1856 describes a merchant as "a man who traffics in, or carries on, trade with foreign countries, or who exports and imports goods and sells them wholesale." The 1902 edition defines a merchant as "one who traffics on a large scale specially with foreign countries, a traffic, a trader." Johnson's dictionary says a trader "is one who traffics to remote countries"; while the Standard edition of 1906 describes a merchant as "a person who buys and sells commodities as a business, and for profit, especially one who has a place of sale and stock of goods, a trader." As one of the Justices remarked, the definition seems to grow wider and wider as we get nearer to-day. Baron BRAMWELL, in 1872 laid it down that "a merchant of, or in, an article is one who buys and sells it and not the manufacturer selling it." According to this legal definition any man who buys or sells may claim to be a merchant. But lawyers, like doctors, differ, and as opposed to Baron BRAMWELL's definition, STERN'S Judicial Dictionary was quoted as saying:— "Everyone who buys and sells is not a merchant, only those who traffic in the way of commerce by importation or exportation.

Bankers and such as deal by exchange are properly called merchants." That is a definition which, we think, fits the English conception of a merchant, but in Scotland, as well as in the United States a merchant may be "one who keeps a shop or store for the sale of goods; a shopkeeper." Etymologically such a use of the word would seem to be justifiable and general practice must be regarded as the only authority for the restriction of the use of the term "merchant" to large wholesale dealers. The Justices at the Guildhall Quarter Sessions, while they admitted the claim of the appellants in the case before them, did not venture to lay down any definition for the guidance of the officials charged with the duty of compiling the Jury lists, but we gather, from the tone of the observations made by the Justices in the course of the case, that they did not regard shopkeepers and petty traders "as merchants" within the meaning of the Act.

Mr. E. Gordon Lowder, of the I.M.C., is making a tour of inspection of all the Custom houses.

The Bijou Trombones are now on a visit to Hongkong. Their first entertainment was given last night.

We are in receipt of a telegram announcing that copies of Lloyd's Impressions of Hongkong and the Far East are being shipped for the East this month by the P. & O. steamer Sumatra.

At the Magistrate's yesterday Mr. J. H. Kemp fined a houseboy $10 for wantonly ill-using a dog by pouring hot water over it. The prosecutor was Mr. C. H. Gale of No. 1, Des Vours Villa, the Peak.

The second performance of "The Silver King" on Monday night was even more successful than the first. The production went with a pleasing swing throughout and the Kowloon Dock amateurs certainly added to their laurels by their finished work.

The Vienna, semi-official Fremdenblatt announces that M. Amiro, the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador to Japan, will shortly resign on account of ill-health, and that he will be succeeded by Baron von Cull, First Chief of Section in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

The return of visitors to the City Hall Library and Museum for the week ending the 10th January, 1909, shows that of non-Chinese there were 394 to the Library and 199 to the Museum, and of Chinese 186 to the former and 2,631 to the latter. The Library was, therefore, used by 580 persons and the Museum by 2,830.

This morning, at 11.30, a special Memorial Service for those who perished in the terrible calamity in the South of Italy will be held at St. Joseph's Catholic Church. The Rt. Rev.
Bishop D. Pozzani will preside at the ceremony assisted by all his local clergy. (Rev. Z. Volpicelli, the Italian Consul-General, Captain Marquis Cusani Visconti, the officers and men from the cruiser Puglia will also be present and the Italian community are especially invited to attend.

Judging that the destruction caused by the present earthquake in Italy will furnish much material for study, Professor Omori, the well-known Japanese seismologist is being sent to Italy. Investigation into the damage done to buildings, waterworks and other engineering works at Messina and Reggio will prove very instructive to architects and engineers, and accordingly an architect and a civil engineer will accompany Professor Omori. The party is expected to leave Tokyo on or about the 15th instant for the scene of the calamity, travelling by the Siberian Railway.

Mr. A. N. Huke who for the past seventeen years has been associated with the bookelling business of Messrs. W. Brewer & Co., of Hongkong and Shanghai, severed his connection with the firm at the end of the year and left with Mrs. Huke for England yesterday by the Blue Funnel steamer Theosus. Coming out in 1891, Mr. Huke was attached to the Shanghai branch for four and a half years and then, having been admitted to partnership, he came down to Hongkong where he has since remained in charge of the business here. Mr. and Mrs.
Huke have a wide circle of friends in the Colony and many were present at the wharf yesterday to bid them bon voyage.

LONDON, January 12th.

News has reached Berlin that the Munshis fiercely attacked the Anglo-German Nigeria Boundary Commission in British territory on December 29rd.

At the request of the British Commissioner, a German escort co-operated in punishing the assailants.

There were thirty-five casualties in

THE “EASTERN” STOWAWAYS.

At the Magistrate's yesterday before Mr. J.
H. Kemp, Mr. Gardiner (of Messrs. Brutton and Hett) appeared to make application for a re-hearing in the case in which his Worship had, on the previous day, sentenced 20 Chinese stowaways to nine months' imprisonment each.

Mr. Gardiner stated that he made the application with a view to getting a reduction of the sentence. Nine months seemed a very heavy sentence, and he did not think the owners pressed for such a penalty.

His Worship—It is a very serious offence you know.

Mr. Gardiner—I don't think the circumstances were altogether explained to your Worship. The defendants are ignorant persons from the interior, who were inveigled into going to Australia, and they thought they were getting there very cheap when they paid a total sum of $800. They were ignorant of the fact that the owners of the steamer were being defrauded of their proper rights.

His Worship—The owners pressed for the full penalty.

Mr. Gardiner—My instructions are that they are rather sorry these people got such a heavy sentence. The circumstances must have been misrepresented to the defendants, otherwise they would not have attempted the journey.

His Worship said he would consider the matter without granting a re-hearing, together with any letter which Mr. Gardiner might be able to obtain from the agents.

THE ROBBERY AT MADAME FLINTS.

The three natives who were caught in the act of rifling Madame Flint's millinery establishment in Queen's Road Central were charged before Mr. J. H. Kemp at the Magistrate's yesterday. The first and second defendants denied the charge preferred against them, but the third admitted taking a small bundle of goods. He intended disposing of these because he owed money in the country, and if he did not pay up immediately he would be charged double interest.

His Worship sentenced each of the defendants to six months' imprisonment with hard labour.

DARING ATTEMPT AT HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

IN QUEEN'S ROAD CENTRAL.

In the busiest part of Queen's Road Central at four o'clock on Monday afternoon, a daring attempt was made by three Chinese to relieve a visitor of his ready cash. Evidently the thieves had been watching a money changer's stall and saw the complainant change $200 Singapore coinage into Hongkong money. He had not proceeded far along the street with his change when the rogues accosted him. One man blinded him by throwing pepper in his eyes, while the other two made a bold attempt to wrest his bag of money from him. The visitor clutched this tightly, however, while his cry of “thief,” soon secured assistance from among the passers-by. Finding their efforts fruitless, the robbers hastily decamped and although all were pursued only one man was arrested. He was charged before Mr. J. H. Kemp at the Magistrate's yesterday, and the hearing of the case was adjourned.

INDO-CHINA FINANCES.

The Governor-General of Indo-China opened a session of the High Council of the Colony at Hanoi, last month when he delivered a speech, showing the unsatisfactory condition of the finances, now that all loan money had been spent.
The burden of interest presses heavily on the Budget for 1909. The Yunnan Railway had laid the colony in for enormous expenses, and the fall in silver had proved to be a sore embarrassment. The balancing of the Budget depended upon the strictest economy next year.
Any fresh loan raised will be spent for the special purposes of the borrowing and for nothing else. There had been too much slackness on this point in the past. His idea is to do without borrowing as far as possible, so that the Colony might soon stand on its own feet, and might get on without outside financial help.

Mr. Theodore Roosevelt has already begun his editorial connection with the New York Outlook. In the December number there is printed an article by him on “The Awakening of China,” in which he says:—“Now is the time for the West to implant its ideals in the Orient, in such fashion as to minimise the chance of a dreadful future clash between two radically different and hostile civilisations; if we wait until to-morrow, we may find that we have waited too long.”

The appointment of Mr. J. Forster, of St.
Helens, Lancashire, as Chinese Consul-General in London, is described by a London contemporary as an important landmark in the commercial development of China. Mr. J. Forster is head of John Forster and Sons, a prominent Lancashire firm at constructional engine and for many years he has been interested in large trading concerns in China. He has made several prolonged visits to China, and has many influential acquaintances in Peking and the Treaty ports.

ST. STEPHEN'S GIRLS' SCHOOL.

ANNUAL PRIZE DISTRIBUTION.

His Excellency the Governor, who was accompanied by Captain Mitchell-Taylor, A.D.C., presided at the annual prize distribution of the St. Stephen's Girls' College and Preparatory School yesterday. The small hall in which the event took place was prettily decorated, but was not large enough to accommodate all who came, consequently there was some crowding at the doors. Among those present were His Lordship Bishop Lander, the Revs. E. J. Barnett, J. H.
France, A. J. Bunbury, Mrs. S. W. Tee and the Hon. Dr. Ho Kai.

The proceedings opened with a lengthy programme of songs and recitations by the scholars. The Rev. Mr. BARNETT then read Miss Carden's report in which it was stated that the School sent their first candidate for the Oxford Local Examination this year. The candidate was Wan Suk Ching, daughter of Dr.
Wan Tuen Mo, and she succeeded in passing the junior test in every subject presented. Miss Wan was to be congratulated upon being, so far as could be ascertained, the first Chinese girl to have her name placed on the Oxford junior list.

Mr. BARNETT then gave the following brief history of the school.—It is almost four years since St. Stephen's Preparatory School was opened in one room at Breedy Point, with five small boys and girls, under the care of Miss Carden.
A year later premises were rented at 33, Caine Road, the name being changed to St. Stephen's Preparatory and Girls' School. Soon, however, girls predominated, and to be in keeping with its present character, the name was once again varied and now reads—St. Stephen's Girls' College and Preparatory School. Steadily the school increased in numbers and proficiency until recently there has been a demand for accommodation for boarders. The former house was not convenient for this purpose. Consequently, in consultation with the Hon. Dr.
Ho Kai and Mr. S. W. Tee, the Committee was glad to consider a plan for extension. Seeing that the Church Missionary Society does not provide funds for carrying on this school, neither do the parents of pupils desire the Society to do so, the proposal for expansion brought the Committee face to face with serious financial responsibilities. At this juncture Chinese gentlemen came forward with the suggestion that the financial risk attending removal into these larger premises should be guaranteed in equal parts by the College Council and by certain parents of the pupils. This proposal having been accepted on both sides, the building was secured on lease, and the further question of furnishing was solved by a proposal from our liberal friends that they should provide about $1000 for this purpose. It is characteristic of these Chinese parents that when a list of furniture was supplied amounting to $1500, they did not only not object to their free-will offerings being increased fifty per cent., but they even went beyond this larger sum, with the result that to-day we are not obliged to meet in an unfurnished house.

The Church Missionary Society provide the Principal of the Girls' College whom parents and pupils have learnt to value so highly. The Society is also sending out Miss Hunt to assist. The School itself provides three other lady teachers, who have already been mentioned in the report. That this endeavour to meet the present needs of the Girls' College is appreciated by those for whom the school is intended, needs no further proof than is afforded by the list of gifts appended.

Every one of these gifts represents so much interest in the school: every one of them is gladly acknowledged and valued. And the Committee warmly thanks every lady and gentleman who has so generously come forward and shared in the burden of the weightier responsibilities which the school has undertaken.
There is but one regret to record to-day, that is the absence of the Venerable Archdeacon of Hongkong. Archdeacon Banister has throughout taken the keenest interest in the welfare of the school, and has ministered in no small degree to its progress. Much to their disappointment, he and Mrs. Banister were obliged to leave for England before the opening of this building. They will be much missed. It will however be a special satisfaction to parents to know that the places vacated on the school committee by Archdeacon and Mrs. Banister are to be filled by no less distinguished person: than the Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of Victoria and Mrs. Lander. This evidence of their interest in the welfare of the Chinese young ladies of Hongkong will certainly not pass unappreciated.

His LORDSHIP the BISHOP, before calling upon the Governor to present the prizes, remarked that by his presence there that day he was helping them to inaugurate that building. The Church Missionary Society realised now that there was a great opportunity for educational work not only among the boys, but among the girls of the East. The time had come when Chinese ladies desired the best possible education, and that afternoon's entertainment was an indication of the talent these young ladies possessed. The education at St. Stephen's would be based upon Christian morality and would concern good manners and propriety. All were delighted to see his Excellency present, but their great regret was that Lady Lugard, through indisposition, was not able to attend and give away the prizes. His Lordship was glad to hear from his Excellency, however, that she was better yesterday, and he hoped she would soon be about again.

His EXCELLENCY, who was greeted with applause as he arose, said—My Lord Bishop Ladies and gentlemen: As your Lordship reminded me just this moment, it is only a day or two ago since I had the pleasure and privilege of laying the foundation stone at St.
Stephen's College for the extension of the new building, and of distributing the prizes. And I had then the pleasure of congratulating the supporters of the school, in the first place on the success of the school which made extension necessary, and in the second place on the facility with which they were able to raise the funds for the extension. To-day my task is an equally pleasant and very similar one, for to-day marks a new era in the life of St. Stephen's Preparatory School. To-day you come into larger premises, and you have a new name. As before at St.

Stephen's College so now I am able to congratulate you on an extension of the school which has necessitated the acquisition of new premises; and also on the generosity of the supporters of the school who have come forward to give increased rent and to provide a fund for furnishing the building. I congratulate the principal, the staff and the school, especially on the signal success achieved by one of your scholars, Miss Wan-(applause), in passing the preliminary Oxford examination. As Mr. Barnett has told us this is probably the first occasion upon which a Chinese girl has passed the Oxford examination in this Colony. That is an event of which this school, and indeed, the Chinese women in this Colony, may be proud, and I hope that in future years you will have more girls' names on the list of those who have successfully passed the Oxford examination. To mark my appreciation and pleasure at hearing this news I shall be glad, if permitted, to give a special prize to Miss Wan—(applause). I always take special interest in these schools which are self-supporting, and do not entirely speak as an harassed official who has to make both ends of the budget meet when there is not sufficient money. I speak from a wider point of view, because it seems to me that the wealthy Chinese gentlemen of the colony are glad to avail themselves of the educational facilities offered, and to come forward and pay the expenses of their sons and daughters in schools, neither dependent on the Mission funds nor on the taxpayer. Such is St. Stephen's and this girls' college. I listened the other day, when at St. Stephen's, to a warm eulogy pronounced by the Hon. Dr. Ho Kai and Mr. Tee upon the warden of that college and the staff. I think that the principal of this Girls' College, and her assistants, merit no less praise than was bestowed the other day on the warden and staff of St. Stephen's (applause). And indeed, their works speak for them. The larger premises show increased confidence and appreciation by the parents and supporters of the school, who have come forward with these subscriptions, and the signal distinction which has been gained by passing a pupil at the Oxford examination is a result which speaks for itself. While I listened the other day to what Dr. Ho Kai so eloquently said on the work of Mr. Barnett and his assistants, the thought came very fortunately to my mind what a duty not only St.
Stephen's or this Girls' College, but many other good works in this Colony and most colleges and hospitals owed to the public spirit, personal generosity and unflinching energy of Dr. Ho Kai—(applause). I am glad to take this opportunity of testifying my admiration and appreciation of what he has done, and is constantly doing. There is no good work in the Colony in which he has not taken a prominent part with the able assistance of his colleague on the Legislative Council, the Hon. Mr. Wei Yuk, also Mr. Tee and other Chinese gentlemen whose names are familiar to us, but the list is too long for me to recapitulate it now. I always feel that we can turn to them with confidence and reliance whenever anything makes for the good of their fellow countrymen. Ladies and Gentlemen, Lady Lugard my wife, asked me to express to you how deeply sorry she was that she was unable to be here this afternoon owing to serious illness, and she asked me to convey to the scholars and the staff of St. Stephen's her earnest hope for their success in the coming year, and to tell them how deeply interested she is in all that concerns this school. She believes, as I do, that the women of China in coming years must learn to appreciate the work in which their husbands are engaged; to intelligently and sympathetically share it, and to help them in framing the destinies of their country—whether it be the country of China, or whether it be this Colony of ours. No woman can be really a companion to her husband unless she can share, sympathetically and intelligently, in his actions and in the work which he has set himself to do.
To do this it is necessary that she should have an education—an education which will enlarge her horizon and enable her to eradicate parochial prejudices, and to take a wider view of the work of the world, and the work in which her husband is engaged. I noted with great interest, from the report of the year read to us by Mr. Barnett, that among other subjects which are taught in this College is domestic economy. I should like to know more precisely what that term covers. I hope it covers sanitation and hygiene of the home, intelligent care of children, sympathetic treatment of servants, the knowledge of simple domestic remedies for household ailments, and last but not least, I hope it covers instructions in the way in which a woman can make her home bright and attractive. I think, perhaps, that the last is the most important of all; that a woman should make her home redolent of the qualities which she herself possesses, the cultivation and refined taste which education bring with it. This then, is the advice which I would give the pupils of this College: that they should endeavour to prepare themselves for what, I think, is the best work woman can do in this world—that is, to share intelligently and sympathetically in her husband's work, and to endeavour to set before him by her ideals and her standards of duty, the art of making their home bright and attractive; as attractive and bright as they themselves. I wish you all a happy new Chinese year, and I wish all the pupils of this College, and the staff of the College, pleasant holidays.

His EXCELLENCY then proceeded to distribute the prizes to successful pupils.

DEFORESTATION IN CHINA.

PRESENT ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE.

American papers now received give the text of President Roosevelt's Message to Congress. We give below a striking passage regarding the lessons to be learnt from the results of deforestation in China.

"All serious students of the question are aware of the great damage that has been done in the Mediterranean countries of Europe, Asia and Africa by deforestation. The similar damage that has been done in Eastern Asia is less well known. A recent investigation into conditions in North China by Mr. Frank N. Meyer, of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture, has incidentally furnished in a very striking fashion, proof of the ruin that comes from reckless deforestation of mountains, and of the further fact that the damage once done may prove practically irreparable. So important are these investigations that I herewith attach as an appendix to my Message certain photographs showing present conditions in China. They show in vivid fashion, the appalling desolation, taking the shape of barren mountains and gravel and sand covered plains, which immediately follows and depends upon the deforestation of the mountains. Not many centuries ago the country of Northern China was one of the most fertile and beautiful spots in the entire world, and was heavily forested. We know this from the accounts given by the traveller, Marco Polo. He, for instance, mentions that in visiting the province of Shansi and Shensi he observed many plantations of mulberry trees. Now there is hardly a single mulberry tree in either of these provinces, and the culture of the silkworm has moved farther south to regions of atmospheric moisture.

"As an illustration of the complete change in the rivers, we may take Marco Polo's statement that a certain river, the Hui Ho, was so large and deep that merchant vessels could sail from the sea with heavily laden boats; to-day this river is simply a broad sand bed, with shallow, rapid currents wandering hither and thither across its absolutely unrecognizable. But we do not have to depend on written records. The dry wells, and the walls with water far below the former watermark, bear testimony to the good days of the past and the evil days of the present. Wherever the native vegetation has been allowed to remain, as for instance, here and there around a sacred temple or imperial burying ground, there are still huge trees and tangled jungle, fragments of the glorious growth formerly covered the mountains to their summits. All natural factors favoured this dense forest growth, and as long as it was permitted to exist, the plains at the foot of the mountains were among the most fertile on the globe, and the whole country was a garden. Not the slightest effort was made, however, to prevent the unchecked cutting of the trees, or to secure reforestation. Doubtless for centuries the tree-cutting by the inhabitants of the mountains was going on, but slowly in bringing about the changes that have now come to pass, the changes that have now come to pass were scarcely noticeable. But there came a time when the forest had shrunk sufficiently to make each year's cutting a serious matter, and from that time on the destruction proceeded with appalling rapidity; for, of course, each year of destruction rendered the forest less able to recuperate, less able to resist next year's invasion. Mr. Meyer describes the ceaseless progress of the destruction even now, when there is so little left to destroy. Every morning men and boys go out armed with mattocks or axes, scale the steepest mountain sides and cut down and grub-out root and branch the small trees and shrubs still to be found. The big trees disappeared centuries ago, so that now one of these is never seen save in the neighbourhood of temples, where they are artificially protected; and even here it takes all the watch and care of the tree loving priests to prevent their destruction. Each family, each community, where there is no common care exercised in the interest of all, to prevent deforestation, finds its profit in the immediate use of the fuel which would otherwise be used by some other family or some other community. In the total absence of regulation of the matter in the interest of the whole people, each small group is inevitably pushed into a policy of destruction which cannot afford to take thought for the morrow. This is just one of those matters which it is fatal to leave to unsupervised individual control. The forests can only be protected by the State, nation; and the liberty of individuals must be conditioned upon what the State or nation determines to be necessary for the common safety.

"The lesson of deforestation in China is a lesson which mankind should have learned many times already from what has occurred in other places. Denudation leaves naked soil; then gully cuts down to the bare rock; and meanwhile the rock waste buries the bottom-land. When the soil is gone, men must go; and the process does not take long. The ruthless destruction of the forest in northern China has brought about, or has aided in bringing about, desolation, just as the destruction of the forests in Central Asia aided in bringing ruin to the once rich central Asian cities; just as the destruction of the forests in northern Africa helped towards the ruin of a region that was a fertile granary in Roman days. Short-sighted man, whether barbaric, semi-civilized or what he mistakenly regards as fully civilized, when he has destroyed the forests, has rendered certain the ultimate destruction of the land itself. In northern China the mountains are now absolutely barren peaks. Not only have the forests been destroyed, but because of their destruction the soil has been washed off the naked rock. The terrible consequence is that it is impossible now to undo the damage that has been done. Many centuries would have to pass before soil would again collect, or could be made to collect in sufficient quantity once more to support the old-time forest growth. In consequence the Mongol desert is practically extending eastward over northern China. The climate has changed even within the last half century, as the work of deforestation has been consummated. The great masses of arborescent vegetation on the mountains formerly absorbed the heat of the sun and sent up currents of cool air which brought the moisture laden clouds lower and forced them to precipitate in rain a part of their burden of water. Now that there is no vegetation, the barren mountains scorched by the sun, send up currents of heated air which drive away instead of attracting the rain clouds, and cause their moisture to be dissipated. In consequence, instead of the regular and plentiful rains which existed in these regions of China when the forests were still in evidence, the unfortunate inhabitants of the deforested lands now see their crops wither for lack of rainfall, while the seasons grow more and more irregular; and as the air becomes dryer certain crops refuse longer to grow at all.

"That everything dries out faster than formerly is shown by the fact that the level of the wells all over the land has sunk perceptibly, many of them having become totally dry. In addition to the resulting agricultural distress, the watercourses have changed. Formerly they were narrow and deep, with an abundance of clear water the year around; the roots and humus of the forests caught the rainwater and let it escape by slow, regular seepage. They have now become broad, shallow streams, in which muddy water trickles in slender currents during the dry seasons, while when it rains there are freshets, and roaring muddy torrents come tearing down, bringing disaster and destruction everywhere. Moreover, these floods and freshets which diversify the general dryness, wash away from the mountain sides, and either wash away or cover in the valleys, the rich fertile soil which it took tens of thousands of years for nature to form, and it is lost for ever, and until the forests grow again it cannot be replaced. The sand and stones from the mountain sides are washed loose and come rolling down to cover the arable lands, and in consequence, throughout this part of China, many formerly rich districts are now sandy wastes, useless for human cultivation and even for pasture. The cities have been, of course, seriously affected, for the streams have gradually ceased to be navigable. There is testimony that even within the memory of men now living there has been a serious diminution of the rainfall of North-eastern China. The level of the Sunghai river, in Northern Manchuria, has been sensibly lowered during the last fifty years, at least partly as the result of the indiscriminate cutting of the forests forming its watershed. Almost all the rivers of Northern China have become uncontrollable, and very dangerous to the cities about their banks, as a direct result of the destruction of the forests. The journey from Peking to Jehol shows in melancholy fashion how the soil has been washed away from whole valleys, so that they have been converted into deserts.

"In Northern China this disastrous process has gone on so long and has proceeded so far that no complete remedy could be supplied. There are certain mountains in China from which the soil is gone so utterly that only the slow action of ages could again restore it; although, of course, much could be done to prevent the still further eastward extension of the Mongolian desert, if the Chinese Government would not at once. Mountains which formerly supported dense forests of larches and fir, are now unable to produce any wood, and because of their condition, are a source of danger to the whole country. The photographs also show the same rivers after they have passed through the mountains, the beds having become broad and sandy because of the deforestation of the mountains. One of the photographs shows a caravan passing through a valley. Formerly, when the mountains were forested, it was thickly peopled by prosperous peasants. Now the floods have carried destruction all over the land and have carried destruction all over the land and have carried destruction all over the land. One photograph shows a mountain road covered with the stones and rocks that are brought down in the rainy season from the mountains which have already been deforested by human hands. Another shows a pebbly river bed in Southern Manchuria, where what was once a great stream has dried up, owing to the deforestation in the mountains. Only some scrub wood is left, which will disappear within a half century. Yet another shows the effect of one of the washouts being due to the removal of all vegetation; yet in this photograph the foreground shows that deforestation is still a possibility in places.

"What has thus happened in Northern China, what has happened in Central Asia, in Palestine, in North Africa in parts of the Mediterranean countries of Europe, will surely happen in our country if we do not exercise that wise forethought which should be one of the chief marks of any people calling itself civilized. Nothing should be permitted to stand in the way of the preservation of the forests, and it is criminal to permit individuals to purchase a little gain for themselves through the destruction of forests when this destruction is fatal to the well-being of the whole country, in the future."
